Breast Cancer

- Yearly mammograms starting at age 40
- Clinical breast exams every three years for women in their 20s and 30s; every year for women 40 and older
- Women at increased risk (i.e., family history) should talk with their healthcare provider about starting screenings earlier

Colorectal Cancer

Beginning at age 50, Men and women should have one of the following tests:

- Fecal occult blood test (FOBT) or fecal immunochemical test (FIT) every year
- Flexible Sigmoidoscopy (FSIG) every 5 years
- Double-contrast barium enema every 5 years
- Colonoscopy every 10 years

Gynecologic Cancers

- Yearly Pap test screenings about three years after a woman begins having sexual intercourse; no later than 21 years old
- After age 30, women who have had three negative results in a row may get screened every three years

Skin Cancer

- Examine your skin from head to toe once every three months. If you spot a new mole or growth that looks suspicious, see a dermatologist.

  - Asymmetry: The shape of one half doesn't match the other
  - Border: Edges that are ragged and blurred
  - Color: Uneven shades of brown, black or tan, and sometimes patches of red, blue or white
  - Diameter: The width is greater than one-quarter inch (size of a pencil eraser, though some melanomas may be smaller)
  - Elevation: A mole appears elevated or raised from the skin
